A SMALL, STRATEGIC RESET

HINGE GLOW-UP GUIDE

A sharper profile. Better conversation hooks.
Less performative dating, more actual you.

THE RULE Don't try to appeal to everyone. Give the right person something specific to recognize.

01 / BUILD THE PHOTO LINE-UP

Aim for a mini portrait of your life, not six versions of the same selfie.

01	THE OPENER Clear face, good light, relaxed expression. Make it easy to see you.
02	FULL-LIFE SHOT A natural full-body photo in an outfit you actually wear.
03	IN YOUR ELEMENT Cooking, making something, playing a sport, exploring a place. Show an activity.
04	THE SOCIAL PROOF One group photo at most, with you instantly identifiable.
05	THE TEXTURE A candid, travel moment, pet, hobby, or small detail that invites a question.
06	THE WILD CARD A playful or dressed-up shot that reveals another side of you.

KEEP	RETIRE
Recent photos • natural light • variety • a visible face	Old photos • heavy filters • sunglasses in every shot • gym-mirror overload

Quick test: if a photo could belong to almost anyone, replace it with one that could only plausibly be yours.

Specific beats clever. Every time.

Use your three answers to show range: one playful, one personal, one that makes an easy first message possible.

01 PLAYFUL	Prompt: The way to win me over is… Example: Have a strong opinion about the best dumplings in town, then be willing to test it with me.
02 PERSONAL	Prompt: I'm in my element when… Example: I've got a playlist on, dinner is taking longer than planned, and nobody's rushing the evening.
03 EASY OPENING	Prompt: Before we meet, you should listen to… Example: The song I put on when I need to feel like the main character. I'll defend the choice.

THE PROMPT FORMULA

A REAL DETAIL + A LITTLE PERSONALITY + A CONVERSATION HOOK

CUT THESE

- One-word answers
- "I love food and travel"
- Clichés with no personal twist
- Negativity disguised as banter
- A list of demands

Instead of "I love travel"

"I plan trips around bookstores, street food, and one wrong turn."

FINAL 60-SECOND CHECK

- ☐ Can someone describe my vibe?
- ☐ Do my photos show different sides?
- ☐ Does each prompt reveal something real?
- ☐ Is there an easy thing to ask me about?
- ☐ Does this attract the kind of person I want?

Small move, big difference

Use Hinge's Prompt Feedback if available. Keep only suggestions that still sound like you.

RESEARCH NOTES • Hinge's own guidance recommends specific, non-cliché prompt answers, recent photos, a clear face, and a varied profile. Hinge reported in 2025 that likes on text prompts were 47% more likely to lead to a date than likes on photos; this is platform-reported data, not a universal guarantee.
